Dear MSU Denver Faculty and Staff,

Fall Semester is underway! The Office of Career Services is excited to offer multiple on-campus recruiting programs and events that will enable students to make valuable career connections with employers. Here's a snapshot of what we have planned for Fall 2016:

Non-Profit Networking Night: October 5

Non-profit organizations meet with students and alumni about employment opportunities.

Careers in Business Fair: November 1

A premier opportunity to recruit top students and alumni for business-related internships and professional career positions.

Part-Time/Seasonal Hiring Event: November 8

Timely opportunity for employers seeking students to fill holiday, seasonal, or part-time openings.

On-Campus Interviews: September – November

Throughout the semester, we will have employers on campus hiring for professional career positions (positions that offer a career path, including paid internships and jobs where a degree is required or preferred).

Whether your students are first-year or seniors, the Office of Career Services provides several programs and events for each stage in the career planning process. Visit our website at www.msudenver.edu/career for more information.

We are looking forward to an exciting semester!

Sincerely,

The Office of Career Services

Predictions 2021: Students Will Most Value Good Benefits Packages, Job Security

What qualities will student job seekers most value in employers in 2021? According to NACE's recent predictions poll, three qualities—opportunity for rapid advancement, ability to improve the community, and high starting salary—were among the top three. Coming in last was opportunity for personal growth. (View complete results of the Employer Qualities poll.)

Roadrunner Profile:

Kiaya Chapman

Major: B.A. Business Management

Graduated: May 2015

Current Employment:

Training and Recruiting Specialist for Mutual of Omaha

As a recruiter, I would highly recommend becoming very active on LinkedIn and in networking in general. Go to networking socials (there are ones out there that are free or have a nominal cost). To get the job you want, you have to know just the right person. Use LinkedIn to join groups in the profession you are seeking. Be active in their conversations. Seek out a mentor in your desired field as well. Use LinkedIn to find someone who would be willing to go over the in's and out's of your industry. The MSU Denver Alumni Advisor Network (eVisor) is also a great resource for alumni seeking networking and business connection opportunities, here is the website <https://msudenver.firsthand.co>. Experience is a highly prized commodity and learning from someone else's experience makes you that more desirable to an employer. It shows that you are resourceful and that you aren't afraid to go outside of yourself.

How Did You Get Your Job?

The first job I got out of college was through Job Link! I was hired on at EFL Associates, an executive recruiting firm, as their Business Development Coordinator. I learned a TON about the recruiting world and that led me to seek out my new gig here at Mutual of Omaha as the Training & Recruiting Specialist.

About Me

I was born and raised in Lakewood, Colorado and I am ALL about the Denver Broncos!! Definitely Colorado Proud. I have 3 (yes 3) dogs, so I am always at the dog park; which is a great place to network by the way.

Job Search Meet Ups

Every Tuesday from 9 to 10:30 AM
September 6 to November 22
Tivoli 215

Encourage students to energize their job search with this drop-in job search group. Discussion topics change weekly.

Are your students choosing a major, exploring careers, needing help looking for a job or preparing for grad school?

Career Services can help students with walk-in and scheduled appointments to help them plan for success.

They can call 303-556-3664 for an appointment or stop by Tivoli 215.

Did You Know?

Leveraging alumni connections can help job-seeking students. NACE's Class of 2015 Student Survey found that nearly 70 percent of graduating seniors tapped alumni in the job search, and nearly 60 percent rated alumni as a very or extremely effective job-search resource.
