

Journalism - Convergent Journalism

Program Advising Checklist – Catalog Year 2017-2018 • JRN5

Convergent Journalism is the term used to describe the writing and producing of journalistic content across media and the use of multiple channels of distribution to multimedia audiences. The demand for content has never been so vast. Students who seek to learn the skills required in the current and emerging mass media marketplace will be part of an experience that develops expertise in the changing field of journalism and technology.

A grade of C- or better is required for each course in this program to count toward the bachelor’s degree. Students should note that programs differ in the minimum grade required.
