

Undergraduate Research & Creative Scholarship Program Workshops

The UR&CS Program will host a series of online workshops (11:30am) to prepare students for the Annual Research Conference in April.

February 18th | The Art of Writing an Abstract

An abstract is a brief summary of your research / project / work. An abstract is often required when writing a grant proposal, writing a paper for publication, or submitting a proposal to present at a conference. But how do you compellingly distill your work into 300 words or less? This workshop will provide you with useful tips for writing an abstract and give you an opportunity to get started on your own abstract.

March 11th | Creating a Research Poster

Posters are one method of communicating your research or work. The design of your poster is important in helping your audience understand your work. This workshop will help you get started. We will discuss programs to use, information to include, and how to use visuals to draw the attention of your audience. This workshop is tailored to students who are participating in MSU Denver's Annual Undergraduate Research Conference, but all are welcome to attend.

March 18th | Preparing an Oral Presentation

Up to 75% of the population has some form of anxiety around public speaking, so you are not alone! However, oral communication is one of the top skills employers look for when hiring. This workshop will help you organize your talk, design effective visual aids, and draw the attention of your audience. This workshop is tailored to students who are participating in MSU Denver's Annual Undergraduate Research Conference, but all are welcome to attend.
