Dear member of the Spring 2007 graduating class:

Congratulations on the successful completion of your hard-earned baccalaureate degree from Metropolitan State College of Denver. This is a significant achievement of which you and your family should be justifiably proud.

Just as you now have a solid foundation on which to build a career or broaden your education in graduate school, Metro State has secured a strong heritage of providing a high-quality education through relevant and individualized academic experiences that will serve the Colorado community into the future as we strive to become the nation's preeminent public urban baccalaureate college.

As a graduate of Metro State, you are now a part of that heritage, which includes more than 60,000 alumni, all of whom through their tenacity, energy and intelligence are helping put Metro State on the map. Here are but a few examples of their achievements:

- Katherine Archuleta, a 1971 graduate, is the chief operating officer for the City and County of Denver. She has also served as chief of staff in the U.S. Department of Transportation.
- Joshua N. Adkins (1995, chemistry and biology), holds a Ph.D. from Colorado State University and is a senior research scientist at Pacific Northwest National Laboratory in Richland, Washington.
- Joe Rice (1989, history), has completed his first term in the Colorado State House of Representatives, where he joined two other Metro State alumni, Sen. Dorothy Tochtrop (1988, nursing and health care management), and Rep. Jerry Frangas (1998, social work), in helping direct Colorado's future.
- Dave Zur (1989, marketing and media communications), is the vice president of operations for Altitude Sports television in Denver.

Your degree from Metro State symbolizes the knowledge, experiences and skills you have attained that make you ready and qualified to accept the challenge of engaging as citizens in a culturally diverse society, much as the people highlighted above have done. We eagerly anticipate your accomplishments, both large and small, and your continuing connection with the Metro State community, which promises you a very warm welcome whenever you return.

Please keep in touch with your alma mater.

Sincerely,

Stephen M. Jordan, Ph.D.
President, Metropolitan State College of Denver

Commencement Address: Colorado Governor Bill Ritter

Bill Ritter was elected Colorado's 41st governor in November 2006. He is the first native-born governor of the state in 35 years, and the first to serve with a Democratic majority in the General Assembly in 50 years.

Ritter's career has been one of public service. He managed and expanded a food distribution and education center in Zambia, Africa, with his wife Jeannie in the late 1980s. Upon his return to the Denver area in 1989, then-Governor Roy Romer appointed Ritter to the District Attorney's Office, citing his missionary work as an important factor in the decision.

Ritter was a federal prosecutor in the U.S. Attorney's Office in the early 1990s. In 1993, he was appointed Denver's district attorney, a position he went on to win in three subsequent elections (1994, 1996 and 2000).

As district attorney, Ritter created one of the nation's first drug courts and took on white-collar crime in metropolitan Denver. He worked extensively on the prosecution of sexual-abuse and domestic-violence perpetrators, as well as criminals targeting senior citizens. He was responsible for creating the first Victims Services Network in the United States.

Ritter's other public service has included chairing the Board of Promoting Anti-Violence through Education (PAVE), as well as serving on the Denver Foundation's Human Services Committee, the Mile High United Way Board and the Denver Public Schools' Commission on Secondary School Reform.

A strong advocate of higher education, Ritter said in his State of the State address this January that the best economic-development tool is a well-educated workforce and that for many young people across Colorado, affordable colleges and universities are the only lifeline to a better future.

He also stated that his goal is to cut the high school drop-out rate in half within 10 years, citing the fact that about 30 percent of Colorado high school students don't graduate and that less than half of African American, Latino and Native American students who start high school in Colorado actually finish.

Ritter earned his bachelor's degree from Colorado State University and his law degree from the University of Colorado. He and his wife Jeannie have four children.

Metro State: A Bold Goal of Preeminence

Established in 1965, Metropolitan State College of Denver enrolls nearly 22,000 students, the second-largest undergraduate student population in Colorado. In 2005, Metro State set the ambitious long-term goal of becoming the preeminent public urban baccalaureate college in the nation, toward which it already has made significant progress.

Metro State is steadfast in its mission to provide students from all walks of life with a high-quality education that prepares them for rewarding careers, postgraduate education and lifelong learning in a multicultural, global and technological society. With a commitment to diversity as a core value, Metro State is proud that the College has the largest student of color enrollment of all Colorado's four-year institutions.

Metro State empowers students to create their own success by providing relevant, enriching and individualized academic experiences. Unique attributes of the College include outstanding, committed faculty with a passion for teaching; student-centered learning; a personalized classroom experience with more student/faculty interaction; and real-world, 21st century career preparation through a blend of theory and applied learning.

The College boasts accomplished professors who are known nationally in their respective fields, including Marketing Professor Nancy Frontzcak who was named marketing professor of the year in 2005; Music Professor Fred Hess, who won the 2006 International Jazz Composers Symposium Award; and Chicano Studies adjunct faculty member Tony Garcia, who received the 2006 UnitedStates Artists Fellowship award for his unique artistic vision.

Metro State students are making a name for themselves as well. Our students are routinely selected for nationally competitive study-abroad scholarships and win regional awards in myriad academic areas such as theatre, piloting and accounting. This year, the women's soccer team won its second national championship in three years, and the student-produced media won nine regional first-place awards from the Society of Professional Journalists, including best all-around daily student newspaper, best television newscast and best affiliated Web site.

The Class of 2007 joins the ranks of 60,000 proud Metro State alumni, more than 90 percent of whom remain in Colorado to live and work as our teachers, nurses, accountants, pilots, law enforcement officials, social workers and high-tech employees. Metro State graduates run businesses, labor in the not-for-profit world and serve in government at the local and state levels.

Metro State graduates are achieving their dreams. Laura Richardson ('86) became the first female commander of Ft. Myer this spring and John Kirkaldie ('93) is responsible for 700,000 acres of U.S. Forest Service land as a district ranger. Michelle Moss ('80) taught high school in Jefferson County for 13 years and now serves on the Board of Education for Denver Public Schools. Bill Pickle ('75) is the U.S. Senate Sergeant-at-Arms.

The accomplishments of our students and graduates, and the better lives that education brings them, are a great source of pride for Metro State and are an integral part of the foundation on which we are building a national reputation for preeminence.

Academic Attire

Academic attire is modeled after monks' clothing from the Middle Ages, when college faculty and students were members of religious orders. In England, the faculty of many colleges and universities still wear gowns, hoods and caps in the classroom.

In the early 20th century, colleges and universities throughout the world adopted guidelines for the design and colors of academic attire. An institution may design and register special attire for its administrators and graduates, but it must conform to certain standards. Once registered, the design/color combination may not be duplicated by other institutions.

The bachelor's gown is most often black and has long sleeves that taper to a point in the back. It is always worn closed. At Metro State, women do not wear a white collar with the gown. The hood worn by the President's Award recipient is a Metropolitan State College of Denver bachelor's degree hood and is worn by this student to represent the graduating class.

The gown signifying the master's degree is also usually black and may be worn open or closed. It features oblong sleeves that hang below the wrist, tapering to a square cut with a cutaway arc.

Although usually black, the doctoral gown is sometimes seen in colors — usually gold, purple, blue or red. The gown may be worn open or closed. The opening of the gown is faced with velvet and three velvet chevrons run across its bell-shaped sleeves. The velvet facing and chevrons may be black or the color representing the field of study.

The hood varies in length and shape according to the degree it represents — the shortest and smallest signifies the bachelor's degree and the longest and widest signifies the doctoral degree. The velvet bordering the hood represents the degree field of study. The colors most frequently seen at Metro State are royal blue — Philosophy; light blue — Education; yellow — Science; green — Medicine.

The satin lining of the hood, each a specific design, represents the college or university at which the individual earned his or her degree.

The Oxford Cap, or mortarboard as it is better known, completes the attire. In place of the hood, bachelor's candidates at Metro State wear colored tassels on the Oxford Cap to represent the academic department of the College from which they earned their degrees. Those holding graduate degrees usually wear black tassels, but those holding doctoral degrees may wear tassels of gold thread, and may elect to wear a four-sided or eight-sided velvet tam instead of the Oxford Cap. Some universities have designated the Cambridge Cap, a large, soft beret, for their administrators and those who have earned a doctoral degree at that institution.

Insignias worn by honor graduates and members of honor societies

You will notice that some of our graduates are wearing one or more cords, stoles or medallions of various colors or designs about the neck of their gowns to represent high academic achievement. Those graduates who have achieved overall excellence are recognized by the College through three areas of distinction:

Summa Cum Laude (with highest praise)
Gold and blue cord

Magna Cum Laude (with great praise)
Silver and blue cord

Cum Laude (with praise)
Bronze and blue cord

Honors Program

The College encourages students to enroll in and complete an especially rigorous course of interdisciplinary study in addition to the individual's major and minor study degree requirements. This course of study is known as the Honors Program.
