Dear 2012 Summer Graduates and Fall Graduation Candidates:

Congratulations Roadrunners—the first classes to graduate since we officially became Metropolitan State University of Denver on July 1, 2012!

You are about to embark on a new phase in your life, which is why this ceremony is called “commencement.” The word literally means “beginning.” Yes, you have finished your formal studies at MSU Denver, but you are also launching a new identity as the holder of a university bachelor’s or master’s degree.

This is no small thing. In addition to the fact that individual earnings closely correlate with educational attainment, research shows that university graduates tend to enjoy higher levels of job satisfaction and better health, ensure their children are better prepared to attend school, volunteer more in the community and are more likely to vote.

Your achievement today benefits not just you and your family, but also society as a whole. Through individualized learning and professional experiences, your MSU Denver education has uniquely positioned you to meet the complex challenges of the 21st century, while also equipping you to contribute more fully to the workforce, the education of your family and the health of our community.

That’s the power of education: Whether you start a business, accept a promotion, begin a new career or pursue further studies, your MSU Denver education will touch others—through the creation of jobs, your greater efficacy, and your additional skills and wisdom. The education you’ve worked so hard for belongs to you and to everyone you influence and inspire.

This ceremony marks the beginning of your next chapter, just as your alma mater has begun another chapter in its evolution. Use the goodwill of this day to fulfill the promise of your MSU Denver degree—made even more valuable with our university status—by employing the persistence, work ethic and determination that earned you this diploma. Spread the word about the importance of higher education as you see its rewards unfold in your life. And please stay in touch with your scrappy, forward-thinking alma mater.

Once a Roadrunner, always a Roadrunner.

Wishing you the best of luck,

Stephen M. Jordan, Ph.D.

Commencement Speaker:

Shawn C. Worthy, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of Human Services
Metropolitan State University of Denver

With a broad sweep of interests, expertise and community involvement, Associate Professor Shawn Worthy brings a rich background to his work at MSU Denver, where he taught his first class in 1995. He teaches courses in family function and dysfunction, multicultural counseling and crisis intervention, among other topics.

Worthy's student-centered approach to teaching blends theory with practice, and his interest in developing community partnerships provides students with experiences that will make them workforce-ready while helping others succeed. For instance, the READY program is a weeklong job preparation program for young adults who have faced significant challenges in their lives that he and one of students designed at the request of the Denver Mayor's Office of Economic Development.

Worthy says that there are many "diamonds in the rough" at MSU Denver—students who don't realize their potential—and he loves being able to help them along the path to their own achievements. This commitment is why he has received the President's Award for Outstanding Teacher and the Roadrunner Faculty Leadership Award, among others.

In addition to teaching, he has served as chair of the Human Services Department, director of campus-wide mentoring and the Summer Bridge Program and, in 2006-07, as interim vice president of student services.

A clinical psychologist, Worthy specializes in family dynamics, high-risk youth studies, and teen suicide and crisis intervention. In this role, he has worked at other local institutions, including Children's Hospital, where he conducted individual, family and group therapy for hospital clients infected with HIV and served as on-call emergency department clinician for the hospital's Department of Psychiatry. At the Mental Health Corporation of Denver and Urban League of Metropolitan Denver, he conducted psychotherapy with traditionally underserved populations affected by HIV/AIDS. He has worked as the sports psych consultant for the Vail Snow Sports School for the past 10 years. He takes particular pride in his participation in the Denver Foundation's Inclusiveness Project, which aims to increase racial and economic diversity in Denver's nonprofit organizations.

Worthy's research interests include sports psychology; he has done a series of studies on the ways high-risk athletes in extreme sports manage fear, as well as gender differences in fear management among novice skiers. He has conducted research on domestic violence, teen suicide and other issues related to children and families.

He holds a doctorate and a master's degree in clinical psychology from Northern Illinois University and a bachelor of arts in mass communication from the University of Illinois.

Outstanding Fall Graduate:

Patrick J. Kuretich
Bachelor of Science,
Electrical Engineering Technology

Patrick J. Kuretich graduates today with highest honors—summa cum laude, a 4.0 GPA, ranked first overall in the Electrical Engineering Technology Program (EET)—and has already landed a job in his area of interest, power systems.

These achievements didn't come easily. Kuretich says he didn't do well in high school, "mostly through lack of trying." Living on his own since age 19, he worked in various fields and learned that "apathy and not working hard do not take you very far." Developing a strong work ethic outside school, he returned to college at age 26 with the support of his wife, Jennifer, a nurse, and treated school as a job.

"I worked hard in my classes and internship," he says. "All the cool stuff—learning advanced mathematics and engineering and circuits and power analysis—it's about going home and solving quite a few problems. Solving them again, and not just taking the answer, but really understanding what that answer means."

He also successfully completed the challenging, eight-hour Engineering-in-Training (EIT) exam, which entitled him to begin accruing experience to become a licensed Professional Engineer.

Kuretich has been active in MSU Denver's student branch of the Institute for Electrical and Electronic Engineers, serving as chapter president for two years. He coordinated the Engineering Technology Department's participation in community events, including STEMpalooza, a large fair promoting science, technology, engineering and mathematics to K-12 students. He also volunteers for the Denver Multiple Sclerosis Society.

"Patrick's work ethic is extremely high," wrote Richard Pozzi, the chair of the Engineering Technology Department. "His pleasing sense of humor is refreshing and aids others in the class to feel comfortable and ask questions... [He] is extremely creative in his solutions to exams and homework."

"Patrick exhibits superior intelligence as well as an ability to apply creative thinking to problem solving," wrote Megan Paciaroni, EET assistant professor. "Furthermore, he possesses superior communication skills and is well liked by his peers."

When awarded a summer internship with Ulteig Engineers, a regional company whose Denver office designs high-voltage power systems, Kuretich applied his strong work ethic to the internship. At summer's end, the company gave him a letter of intent for full-time employment upon graduation and the opportunity to work part time in the interim. He will start at Ulteig as a graduate engineer in January.

MSU Denver— We educate Colorado

Established in 1965, Metropolitan State University of Denver enrolls 23,000 students and educates more undergraduate Coloradans than any other institution in the state. MSU Denver added master's programs to its offerings in 2010 and today celebrates the bestowal of master's degrees from all three programs: professional accountancy, social work and teacher education.

MSU Denver is steadfast in its mission to provide students from all walks of life with relevant, individualized, high-quality academics leading to degrees that prepare them for rewarding careers, postgraduate education and lifelong learning in a multicultural, global and technological society. With diversity as a core value, MSU Denver is proud to enroll more students of color and educate more of these students in the STEM fields (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) than any other four-year institution in Colorado.

As an urban land-grant institution located in the heart of the state's largest metropolitan area, MSU Denver brings its resources and roll-up-your-sleeves ethic to a myriad of partnerships that impact our community. For example, the Colorado Health Foundation chose MSU Denver to operate the Colorado Center for Medical Laboratory Science, and the Denver Hispanic Chamber Education Foundation asked Political Science Professor Norman Provizer to design a leadership development program. MSU Denver is also partnering with Denver Public Schools in a federally funded program to recruit and train never-before teachers to fill critical classroom needs in DPS.

MSU Denver students are making their mark in competitions against their peers at other institutions. For instance, the Precision Flight Team has recently qualified for the national SAFECON competition for the third year in a row. At last year's event, they brought home the Loening Trophy, a prestigious national award given to the best collegiate aviation program in the country. And our Ethics Bowl team recently qualified to compete in the nationals by besting CU Boulder in the final round of the regional competition.

With the addition of these 1,700 members of the Summer and Fall Classes of 2012, there are now more than 73,700 proud MSU Denver alumni, 75 percent of whom remain in Colorado. They help fuel the state's economy by running businesses, contributing in the nonprofit sector, teaching our children, serving in government at all levels and more. And, they are achieving their dreams. For instance, Jim Saccomano is vice president of corporate communications for the Denver Broncos and David Thibodeau is president and co-owner of the immensely successful Ska Brewery in Durango. Graduates outside Colorado are making a name for themselves as well. For instance, Brigadier General Laura Jane Richardson ('86, psychology) has joined an elite group of only 29 women to have achieved that top-level rank.

The accomplishments of our students and graduates, and the better lives that education brings them, create an undeniable influence that resonates from the Auraria Campus to all four of Colorado's corners and beyond.

Academic Attire

Academic attire is modeled after monks' clothing from the Middle Ages, when college faculty and students were members of religious orders. In England, the faculty of many colleges and universities still wear gowns, hoods and caps in the classroom.

In the early 20th century, colleges and universities throughout the world adopted guidelines for the design and colors of academic attire. An institution may design and register special attire for its administrators and graduates, but it must conform to certain standards. Once registered, the design/color combination may not be duplicated by other institutions.

The bachelor's gown is most often black and has long sleeves that taper to a point in the back. It is always worn closed. At MSU Denver, women do not wear a white collar with the gown. The hood worn by the President's Award recipient is an MSU Denver bachelor's degree hood and is worn by this student to represent the graduating class.

The gown signifying the master's degree is also usually black and may be worn open or closed. It features oblong sleeves that hang below the wrist, tapering to a square cut with a cutaway arc.

Although usually black, the doctoral gown is sometimes seen in colors—usually gold, purple, blue or red. The gown may be worn open or closed. The opening of the gown is faced with velvet and three velvet chevrons run across its bell-shaped sleeves. The velvet facing and chevrons may be black or the color representing the field of study.

The hood varies in length and shape according to the degree it represents—the shortest and smallest signifies the bachelor's degree and the longest and widest signifies the doctoral degree. The velvet bordering the hood represents the degree field of study.

The satin lining of the hood, each a specific design, represents the college or university at which the individual earned his or her degree.

The Oxford Cap, or mortarboard as it is better known, completes the attire. In place of the hood, bachelor's candidates at MSU Denver wear colored tassels on the Oxford Cap to represent the academic department of the University from which they earned their degrees. Those holding graduate degrees usually wear black tassels, but those holding doctoral degrees may wear tassels of gold thread, and may elect to wear a four-sided or eight-sided velvet tam instead of the Oxford Cap. Some universities have designated the Cambridge Cap, a large, soft beret, for their administrators and those who have earned a doctoral degree at that institution.

President Stephen Jordan is wearing the University's chain of office, a visible symbol of his authority as the institution's leader.

Academic Distinction

You will notice that some of our graduates are wearing one or more cords, stoles or medallions of various colors or designs about the neck of their gowns to represent high academic achievement. Those graduates who have achieved overall excellence are recognized by the University through three areas of distinction:

Summa Cum Laude (with highest praise)
Gold and blue cord

Magna Cum Laude (with great praise)
Silver and blue cord

Cum Laude (with praise)
Bronze and blue cord

The University encourages students to enroll in and complete an especially rigorous course of interdisciplinary study in addition to the individual's major and minor study degree requirements. This course of study is known as the Honors Program.
