

DIALOGUES PROGRAM

Program Overview

What is Dialogue?

Dialogue is not debate or discussion. Rather, dialogue is a process where we invite inquiry, explore differences, and build shared understandings. Dialogue is a facilitated group process that brings together people with different lived experiences and identities to deeply engage on challenging topics. Dialogue provides a space where people can bravely confront uncomfortable conversations. The goal of dialogue is ultimately to learn from each other and bridge gaps of understanding, which can often lead to action.

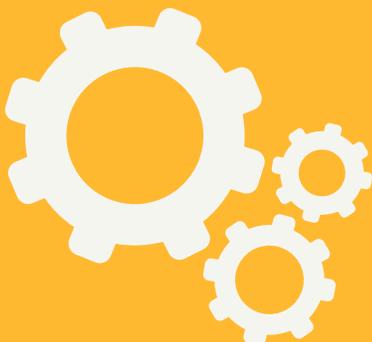

Dialogue Details:

- MSU Denver has modeled its program after Intergroup Dialogue from the University of Michigan.
- The Dialogues Program is a partnership between the Communication Studies Department and the Dean of Students Office.
- Dialogues typically consist of about 15 students, faculty and staff, and 2 trained facilitators.
- Each dialogue begins with community-building and setting norms to help participants engage in a brave space together.

What goes on during a Dialogue?

After community building and setting norms, we will engage in dialogue through:

- facilitated discussion
- self- reflection
- group exercises and small-group breakouts

Dialogue Applications:

Dialogues may be offered as a semester-based series, single opportunities, can be tailored to fit the classroom, department meeting, student organization event, program discussion, and in many other settings. We also host other events that encourage community building and understanding across differences.

Calling all Facilitators:

The MSU Denver Dialogues Program commits to training interested students, faculty and staff in intergroup dialogue facilitation to build conflict resolution skills and to help us bring dialogue to our broader community. Dialogue trainings are typically held once per semester and is posted on the website.

What are Dialogue norms?

Norms to guide a dialogue may include:

- Confidentiality: What's learned here leaves here, what's shared here stays here.
- Our primary commitment is to learn from each other.
- We will not demean, devalue, or "put down" people for their experiences, lack of experiences, or difference in interpretations of those experiences.
- We will trust that people are always doing the best they can.
- Expect and accept a lack of closure. There is always more dialogue and action to be done.
- Monitor your airtime: Know when to step up and step back.
