English Department Guidelines for 2020-2021

Department Mission Statement

Department of English faculty share a heritage in which language, both verbal and visual, writing, literature, and the art of teaching are valued as cornerstones of a liberal education. Representing distinct specializations, we form a community of readers, writers and linguists who pursue the study of humane letters for both aesthetic and practical reasons.

The English Department provides students from across the university with courses that fulfill the General Studies requirement in Written Communication: English 1010 (Composing Arguments) or English 1008 plus English 1009, and English 1020/1021 (Research and Argument Writing). The Department also teaches courses that meet the General Studies requirement in Arts and Humanities including some Global Diversity courses. Thus, in keeping with the liberal arts tradition of general education, the Department promotes both the basic intellectual skills of critical reading and writing and the kind of understanding of the human condition that comes from the experience and appreciation of literature and cinema.

For students majoring or minoring in English, the program provides a foundation in literature, language, linguistics, rhetoric, writing, film and media studies, and teaching. Thus students' command of written language, their ability to analyze and interpret both texts and concepts, and their broad understanding of human nature and social realities will enable them to be competitive in a variety of fields, including education, business, and public service or, with appropriate graduate work, in professions such as law and higher education.

English Department faculty members develop professionally, maintaining currency in the curricula they teach and in their scholarly and creative work leading to various forms of publication and presentation. They serve the University and community by volunteering in schools or other organizations by sharing with their fellow citizens the insights of teacher-scholars educated in the tradition of the liberal arts.

Preamble

Where examples are cited for fulfillment of each area of evaluation, they are, indeed, illustrative examples. Faculty members may cite other comparable activities to support a claim for a particular level of evaluation.

As faculty are preparing their portfolios, and the Department Committees are reviewing them, they are encouraged to consult the Handbook and confirm with the Provost's Office the parameters of the period under review.

Faculty granted Reassigned Time or Course Releases may choose which field(s) (Teaching, Scholarly Activity, Service, or any combination thereof) in which they wish the Reassigned Time or Course Release should be evaluated. This should be included in the Portfolio Narrative.

“Shared Governance” is defined here as participation in decision-making processes which are designed to assist the department, school, or university in achieving excellence and helping develop policies, proposals, and other matters of significance, including strategic planning, to the purpose of achieving the mission of the department, school, and/or University.

In discussion of the “differentiated student body,” please refer to the Office of Diversity and Inclusion's website, <https://www.msudenver.edu/diversity/aboutus/>

Professional Responsibilities

- I. Faculty shall perform responsibilities specified in the Handbook (in accordance with the academic calendar) and adhere to accepted standards of professional conduct, including: the conduct of assigned classes; providing the chair with timely notice in the event they cannot conduct a class (or classes); and shall arrange when possible, for instruction to be provided when they cannot be present—either by a substitute or by a class assignment. To clarify expectations, the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences has established a set of General Standards of Performance for all faculty members within the College. Compliance with CLAS General Standards is a prerequisite to a satisfactory performance rating on faculty evaluations. The full list of these General Standards for Performance of Faculty are listed here:
<https://www.msudenver.edu/las/facultyinformation/resources/>
- II. Faculty shall present to all students attending class a course description, class schedule, grading criteria, and special notices required by law or institutional policy (ADA statement, for example).
- III. Faculty shall adopt such procedures as necessary to assure that adequate and accurate records of student performance, and attendance if mandated by the syllabus, are maintained.
- IV. Faculty shall establish, post, and keep a minimum of 5 office hours each week during each academic term of the regular academic year. Faculty granted reassigned time will keep office hours as determined by the chair. Faculty members shall prepare for classes, evaluate students' performance, confer with and advise students, and participate in committee work, professional development, service, and other appropriate professional activities.

Areas of Performance

MSU Denver faculty are reviewed on their performance in three areas: teaching, scholarly activities, and service. All relevant and official information may be considered in the course of any review or evaluation.

TEACHING

The following is pulled from the Faculty Employment Handbook. While faculty should refer to these guidelines as written, future guideline revisions should refer back to the Handbook.

Teaching is the act of creating and maintaining an environment which enhances the opportunities for student learning and discipline-related growth; it includes advising students to facilitate graduation and to transition to post baccalaureate careers or further educational opportunities. Effective teachers display knowledge of their subject matters in the relevant learning environment (classroom, on-line, hybrid, field work, etc.), which typically includes the skills, competencies, and knowledge in a specific subject area in which the faculty member has received advanced experience, training, or education.

1. Content Expertise: To demonstrate knowledge and/or relevant experience: Effective teachers display knowledge of their subject matters in the relevant learning environment (classroom, on-line, hybrid, field work, etc.), which typically includes the skills, competencies, and knowledge in a specific subject area in which the faculty member has received advanced experience, training, or education.
2. Instructional Design: To re-order and re-organize this knowledge/experience for student learning: Effective teachers design course objectives, syllabi, materials, activities, and experiences that are conducive to learning.
3. Instructional Delivery: To communicate and “translate” this knowledge/experience into a format accessible to students: Effective teachers communicate information clearly, create environments conducive to learning, and use an appropriate variety of teaching methods.
4. Instructional Assessment: To evaluate the mastery and other accomplishments of students: Effective teachers design assessment procedures appropriate to course objectives, ensure fairness in student evaluation and grading, and provide constructive feedback on student work.
5. Advising In and Beyond the Classroom: To provide guidance for students as they pursue undergraduate and post-baccalaureate education and/or employment: Effective advisors interact with students to provide career guidance and information, degree program guidance and information (e.g., advice on an appropriate schedule to facilitate graduation), and answers to questions relating to a discipline.

SCHOLARLY ACTIVITIES

The following is pulled from the Faculty Employment Handbook. While faculty should refer to these guidelines as written, future guideline revisions should refer back to the Handbook.

Scholarly Activities: Scholarly and creative activities are disciplinary or interdisciplinary expressions or interpretations that develop ideas, frame questions, create new forms of representation, solve problems, or explore enduring puzzles.

Purposes include, but are not limited to, the following: advancing knowledge or culture through original research or creative activities; interpreting knowledge within or across disciplines; synthesizing information across disciplines, across topics, or across time; aiding society or disciplines in addressing problems; or enhancing knowledge of student learning and effective teaching.

Typically, to be considered scholarship, findings should be disseminated to either peer review by disciplinary scholars or professional or governmental organizations; or critical reflection by a wider community, including corporations or nonprofit organizations, for example.

In addition to these scholarly activities, and depending on the specific Department Guidelines, this category may also include activities in which the faculty member shares other knowledge with members of the learned and professional communities; continued education and professional development activities appropriate to professional status or assignments; and other activities specific to the faculty member's discipline or assigned responsibilities.

SERVICE

The following is pulled from the Faculty Employment Handbook. While faculty should refer to these guidelines as written, future guideline revisions should refer back to the Handbook.

Faculty engage in service when they participate in the shared governance and good functioning of the institution; service to the institution can be at the program, department, school, or college or university level. Beyond the institution, faculty engage in service when they use their disciplinary and/or professional expertise and talents to contribute to the betterment of their multiple environments, such as regional communities, professional and disciplinary associations, non-profit organizations, or government agencies.

Examples of service might include:

- (1) Committee participation
- (2) Committee leadership
- (3) Program or department contributions
- (4) Board participation
- (5) Unpaid public service to community and/or professional organizations
- (6) Contributions to disciplinary associations

Guidelines for Tenure and Promotion to Associate Professor

The institution, as well as The Handbook for Professional Personnel, makes no distinction between early tenure and tenure. If the candidate has met the guidelines listed below and is a 4th year tenure-track faculty member, whether he or she has brought in years or has any previous experience, he or she is eligible to apply for tenure and should be evaluated on the criteria listed below.

In order to meet standards the faculty member must demonstrate in her/his portfolio that during the review period he/she has:

Guidelines for Promotion to Full Professor

For promotion to Professor, there is an expectation for a record of “significant accomplishment” in all three areas. (Faculty Employment Handbook.) Therefore, the expectation for promotion is that the candidates goes beyond rather than maintaining previous standards for Associate Professor. The candidate demonstrates his or her “significant accomplishment” in the narrative, annotated CV and additional materials required in the portfolio submission process.

CAT II Guidelines

Professional Responsibilities

- I. Faculty shall perform responsibilities specified in the Handbook (in accordance with the academic calendar) and adhere to accepted standards of professional conduct, including: the conduct of assigned classes; providing the front office with timely notice in the event they cannot conduct a class (or classes); and shall arranging when possible, for instruction to be provided when they cannot be present—either by a substitute or by a class assignment.
- II. Faculty shall present to all students attending class a course description, class schedule, grading criteria, and special notices required by law or institutional policy (ADA statement, for example).
- III. Faculty shall adopt such procedures as necessary to assure that adequate and accurate records of student performance, and attendance if mandated by the syllabus, are maintained. Gradebooks for the term will be turned in to the front office by the end of the term.
- IV. Faculty shall establish, post, and keep a minimum of 5 office hours each week during each academic term of the regular academic year. Faculty members shall prepare for classes, evaluate students' performance, and confer with and advise students.
- V. The faculty member is not required, but may participate in committee work, professional development and scholarly pursuits, departmental or other service, and curriculum development, and may include such material in any re-appointment, promotion, or multi-year contract documents.
- VI. A class observation is required by the Handbook during the first year for reappointment to the next year.

Re-appointment: Courses are kept current through review of instructional resources and addition of new materials, as appropriate. Expectations for student learning and performance are clearly communicated in syllabi and the faculty member uses student learning objectives/outcomes, as one means to facilitate student learning and assessment. The faculty member uses professional expertise, along with course and/or program assessment results, as available, to improve courses. Faculty member has a record of Student Ratings of Instruction at or above 4.0 for a majority of classes taught; comments, too, show a record of effective teaching. Mitigating factors, like exceptionally low response rates in online classes may be considered in evaluation decisions. Any re-assigned time is addressed in the narrative with an explanation of its merit and effectiveness.

Senior Lecturer: The faculty member has at least six years, as defined in the Handbook, of teaching. The faculty member has a record of effective teaching as appropriate to the member's particular discipline and departmental needs. The faculty member shows examination of teaching practices with evidence of improved teaching, including student evaluations at or above 4.5 in a majority of classes taught, including comments if available. Any re-assigned time is addressed in the narrative with an explanation of its merit and effectiveness. Applicants for Senior Lecturer should demonstrate further achievements with one or more of the following:

- Creation of new curriculum or significant revisions or existing curriculum.
- Regular participation in department assessment activities
- Significant service to the department
- Professional development - presenting at a scholarly conference in the faculty member's teaching field
- Scholarly or creative publication in the faculty member's teaching field
- Recognition of professional or scholarly achievement.
- Advising of an Honors Thesis or teaching of an Independent Study course

Multi-year Contract: Depending on departmental needs, a faculty member may apply for a multi-year contract of two to three years after the faculty member has completed three years of full time service as a Category II member of the Department. The availability of a multi-year contract may be contingent on position description/hiring line number. Application shall consist of a letter, vita, and the last three years of re-appointment reviews. The decision to extend a multi-year contract will be made after consultation among the Department Chair, Director of First Year Writing, and the Dean of Letters, Arts, and Sciences.

CAT III Guidelines

Professional Responsibilities

- I. Faculty shall perform responsibilities specified in the Handbook (in accordance with the academic calendar) and adhere to accepted standards of professional conduct, including: the conduct of assigned classes; providing the front office with timely notice in the event they cannot conduct a class (or classes); and shall arranging when possible, for instruction to be provided when they cannot be present—either by a substitute or by a class assignment.
- II. Faculty shall present to all students attending class a course description, class schedule, grading criteria, and special notices required by law or institutional policy (ADA statement, for example).
- III. Faculty shall adopt such procedures as necessary to assure that adequate and accurate records of student performance, and attendance if mandated by the syllabus, are maintained. Gradebooks for the term will be turned in to the front office by the end of the term.
- IV. Faculty members shall prepare for classes, evaluate students' performance, confer with and advise students in their own classes, and attend one departmental workshop each term and the closing meeting of the term.

Reappointment: Reappointment is based on these guidelines and departmental need. Courses are kept current through review of instructional resources and addition of new materials, and compliance with changing departmental syllabi, as appropriate. Expectations for student learning and performance are clearly communicated in syllabi and the faculty member uses student learning objectives/outcomes, as one means to facilitate student learning and assessment. The faculty member uses professional expertise, along with course and/or program assessment results, as available, to improve courses. Faculty member has a record of Student Ratings of Instruction at or above 4.0 for the majority of classes taught; comments, too, show a record of effective teaching. Mitigating factors, like exceptionally low response rates in online classes may be considered in evaluation decisions. Faculty members communicate regularly with their students via email and respond promptly to emails from students, office staff, the Director of First Year Writing, and the Department Chair.

Affiliate Faculty Observation Policy
English Department
MSU Denver

1. Members of the First-Year Writing Committee including the Director of First-Year Writing will observe Affiliate Faculty. Evaluations will be formative, and reports will be discussed with the Affiliate Faculty member.
2. New affiliate faculty members will be observed once in their first year of teaching for the department.
3. Continuing affiliate faculty members will be observed at least once every three years, with two exceptions:
  - a. The affiliate faculty member requests more frequent observation (for instance, to have a current observation as part of a job application)
  - b. The affiliate faculty member is not meeting guidelines, expectations for reappointment, contractual obligations or professional standards as determined by the Director of First-Year Writing or the English Department Chair. In this case, they will be observed the following semester.

Guidelines for Emeritus Faculty Status

Emeritus Status Guidelines

To be considered for emeritus status, the department of English adheres to the Faculty Employment Handbook requirements of:

- Has completed ten years or more of full-time service at the University;
- Faculty who participate in the transitional retirement program or who continue to teach full-time at the University after retirement are considered to be members of the faculty and therefore are not yet eligible for emeritus status;
- Must be nominated by the department chair or any faculty member in the department of English;
- The nomination should be substantiated in terms of length of service, excellence in teaching, and/or other contributions to the University;
- The nomination must be endorsed by a majority of the tenured members of the English department.

The benefits for an Emeritus Faculty member are outlined in the Faculty Employment Handbook
