- Undergraduate Degree
Also known as bachelor's degree

- Graduate Degree
Also known as master's degree
If you have previously earned your bachelor's degree you may be considered continuing your education to earn your master's degree.
- Certificate
These are short-term training programs with a narrow focus that can be completed separately or in conjunction with a bachelor's degree. These programs alone are typically not eligible for financial aid.
- Non-Degree Seeking
If you are interested in taking classes at MSU Denver, but not looking to complete a bachelor's degree, this may be a good option for you. Non-degree seeking students are not eligible for financial aid.

Where Do Most Students Get Stuck?

When making your account use a personal email that you can access. A temporary PIN will be sent to this email, so you can create your own password.

Academic History

Be sure to mark level of study as high School or College and to mark the degree as high school diploma if you have graduated or plan to graduate.

Concurrent/Dual Enrollment

If you are taking college classes while still in high school, add the institution as well as your high school, be sure to select “no degree awarded/expected”.

SAT/ACT Optional

The SAT/ACT is no longer required as part of admission. If you chose to submit a test score, we may use that information for course placement. Your application will not be negatively impacted if you choose not to submit your test scores.

Residency

Students are classified resident or non-resident in terms of tuition (not legal status). Students who are undocumented or DACA can be classified as residents for tuition purposes. If you are unsure if you can claim Colorado residency learn more online: msudenver.edu/admissions/residency

College Opportunity Fund

The College Opportunity Fund (COF) provides a tuition stipend for eligible undergraduate students who are Colorado residents. If you qualify, the COF stipend pays for a portion of your total in-state tuition. In order to receive the stipend, students must have a COF account and allow its use at MSU Denver.
